

What Uncle Sam Builds for Wage Earners

Here is a general view of Mackley House, a federal-financed housing development built by the Philadelphia division of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers, with funds supplied by the Public Works administration. It provides dwellings for workers at the rate of $10.50 per room, and is intended to be a model of low-cost housing. The structure is located in the Kensington section of Philadelphia.

SPORT CAN BE SAVED BY LIMITING PROFITS

By J. W. MARCHBANK

I have been reading some comments on the American racing scene that are not exactly heartening. The burden of the complaints seems to be just this: Sportsmanism is being crucified by dividend-mad promoters.

One well known commentator says there is no backbone in American racing and until such a backbone evolves those who look at the broader aspects of the game might resolve to do what they can to prevent the decay of the sport.

Another keen observer gets right down to the basic cause of the retrogression of racing in saying the commission on the pari mutuel pools in many states is exorbitant and can only lead to the degeneration of the sport and not to the betterment desired by all real sportsmen. In this state, as has been realized for some time, the "take" must be reduced from 12 to 9 per cent. Action by the present Legislature would be a life-saver for the game.

John L. Hervey, a leading authority on racing, pertinently points out that if things cannot be improved under existing conditions the conditions should be changed. This was by way of developing the thought of a well known racing figure on two continents that he saw no chance of possible improvement. Hervey refuses to be overcome by pessimism and he is undoubtedly right in his position.

We must heartily agree with Hervey, known far and wide under the pen name of "Salvator," when he says:

"If I were asked to name any one thing that racing needs above all others to lift it to a higher plane, I could express it in one word, and that word is:

"SPORTSMANSHIP."

The law must be amended to limit earnings on race tracks in this state to 10 per cent return on the investment. Then we'll have better purses, and, as I have maintained all along, it is indisputable that good purses make high class racing.

COUNTY BOARD HAS APPOINTED NEW ENGINEER

Carl Reid Scott, former deputy county engineer, was appointed as county engineer at a meeting of the Board of Supervisors on Wednesday at Redwood City.

The nomination of Dr. John Paul Sweeney by County Executive Walter T. Kellogg to be director of health, it is expected, will be acted on at next Monday's session of the board.

Scott succeeds James S. James as county engineer. He was deputy engineer until early in the present year, when James failed to recommend him for reappointment to the minor position.

Resignations were accepted by the board from U. S. Marshall as county engineer and from Major Charles C. Gans as health director. It was found that Marshall and Gans were ineligible on account of not having been residents of San Mateo County ninety days prior to their appointments.

COMMANDER IN CHIEF ON WESTERN TOUR

DEALERS MEET AT AUTO SHOW

Prominent Guest Speakers To Deliver Addresses At Annual Session

One of the high spots of Automobile Show Week is the Annual Northern California Motor Car Dealer Association meeting and banquet which is scheduled to be held this year at the Palace Hotel, Tuesday evening, January 22.

Invitations to dealers in this section were sent out yesterday by Arthur D'Ettel, manager of the association, who called special attention to the fact that only 450 reservations were available, that last year the banquet was a complete sell-out and that those desiring reservations should either write in or telephone at once.

J. E. French, chairman of the State Advisory Committee of the Motor Vehicle Retailing Trade Code, is the honored guest at this year's banquet. French, a veteran in the automobile merchandising field, ranks as one of the most popular men in the automobile business and has given liberally of his time over a period of years to dealer association activities.

Among other speakers at the banquet will be John H. Eagal, president of the Northern California Motor Car Dealers Association; W. A. Knuckey, of the Federal-Knuckey Company; William B. Hornblower, attorney; and William L. Hughson, member of the National Automobile Dealers' Association executive committee.

FIRE CHIEF GIVES WARNING ABOUT FALSE ALARMS

Culprits Liable To Heavy Jail Sentences In Case Of Apprehension

Last Saturday evening the Daly City Fire Department was called out to a false alarm, and the same thing again happened on Monday evening of this week.

Fire Chief Chesney wants to warn the miscreants who are turning in these false alarms that if they are apprehended doing so, they probably will spend a few months in the county jail in Redwood City to repent.

The local police and the City Judge have promised that there will be no leniency whatever shown the culprits.

The Fire Department responds to these alarms, believing there is a real conflagration and the members take chances with the apparatus, and it would seem bad enough to have an accident going to a bona fide fire without being compelled to take risks for a false alarm pulled by some one with a perverted mind.

STRUCK DOWN BY AUTOMOBILE

Colma Resident Injured As He Walks Into Path Of Machine

Frank Jackson of Railroad avenue Colma, was struck down by an automobile driven by A. Delfino, also of Colma, as the latter was driving his car west on Washington street last Sunday evening at about 6 o'clock.

N. Gaggero of Colma was riding with Delfino at the time of the accident.

The victim walked into the path of the oncoming machine, according to an eye witness.

Jackson, who sustained cuts and bruises, was taken to the Villa Sanitarium for treatment.

The case was turned over by the local police to State Traffic Officer Otto Schramm for investigation.

Jackson, who was 75 years of age, passed away in the Villa Sanitarium at an early hour yesterday morning. He has no surviving relatives so far as can be learned.

No funeral arrangements have been made, and an inquest is pending.

Thoroughbreds To Race On New Oval On Opening In Spring Of Old Plant

"New Tanforan" is being constructed at San Bruno by order of J. W. Marchbank, owner of the popular race course. Immediately on the awarding of contracts yesterday to various contractors to carry out the transformation, work was begun on making Tanforan the most beautiful and cosiest plant in the whole country.

Racing in California was brought back by owner Marchbank at Tanforan after a long interregnum and San Mateo County citizens take a commendable pride in the glories of the pioneer headquarters in the West of the thoroughbred. Every move in the direction of providing for the high class entertainment, in a setting of perfect comfort, of the racing fans, is welcomed. The latest changes are all along the line of giving enjoyment of the best character to the men and women who have long been loyal supporters of Tanforan.

The racing strip for the spring meeting is to be a new one. The exact date for the opening of a session to last for twenty-five days will be announced as soon as the State Horse Racing Board has made allotments for the year. In the fall there will be another twenty-five day period of the sport.

EXPECT LARGEST ATTENDANCE YET FOR AUTO SHOW

New Models To Bring Out Unprecedented Crowds To See Exhibits

Prepare for the largest attendance at the coming San Francisco Automobile Show that you have enjoyed for many years!

This was the optimistic advice given to the San Francisco Motor Car Dealers at their Tuesday luncheon by Don Gilmore, president of the San Francisco dealer body.

His statement was made following the reading of wires that he had received from Motor Car Dealer officials in New York and Los Angeles, where dealer automobile shows opened Saturday with record crowds in attendance.

"In both these cities," said Gilmore, "the new models without any added attractions brought out record crowds of people. Here in San Francisco, according to plans already formulated and due to co-operation of Detroit factory officials, we will have on display many new models not available for either the New York or Los Angeles Shows plus all the models, chassis exhibits and displays that they are featuring."

"In addition to this, George Wahlgreen has arranged for the personal appearance of Grace Moore, Metropolitan Opera star and world famous motion picture actress. Sharing the spotlight on the stage with this charming personage will be Gaetano Merola and his orchestra. These additional entertainment features will further augment the attendance because they are perhaps the finest entertainment features ever offered in connection with any kind of a commercial show in the United States."

Don Gilmore, as president of the dealer group, together with Fred Pabat, general manager for Don Lee and chairman of the Auto Show Committee is jointly responsible with Wahlgreen, in the staging of this nineteenth Annual Pacific Auto Show.

PEDALISTS ESCAPE SERIOUS INJURIES

William Clemente, 10, of Partridge lane was pedaling his bicycle down Brunswick street, near Crocker avenue, on Monday afternoon at about 5:30 o'clock, when he struck the side of the automobile driven by C. Downall of 6084 Mission street.

Jack Hickey, 11, of Irvington street, who was riding with young Clemente on the handle bars of the bicycle, escaped injuries.

Both boys were taken to the Villa Sanitarium for treatment. Young Clemente sustained a severe cut on the back of his head, but the wound is not considered serious.

EXPERT OPINION BACK OF NORTHERN ARTERY

By J. W. MARCHBANK
Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work

In a letter to an inquiring member of the House of Representatives, Secretary of War George E. Dern said that the report of a special commission appointed to study the project of a highway connect the northeastern part of continental United States with British Columbia, Yukon Territory, and the Territory of Alaska, does not make the definite statement that the project is economically feasible. Secretary Dern adds, however, that the War Department concurs in the finding of the commission that the road is feasible from an engineering point of view and that it can be built at a reasonable cost.

Although the commission does not specifically pass on the economic feasibility of the great project, all the present tendency from every angle is toward the view that the road would not only pay for itself in a comparatively short time, but would serve the worth-while purpose of opening up a very rich country, both in minerals and agriculture, to development. Alaska alone, I am convinced, would take care of at least 6,000,000 of citizens now having a hard time to make both ends meet.

Ernest Walker Sawyer, former assistant Secretary of the Interior, was a member of the commission. He is one of the best posted men anywhere on Alaska. When a member of President Roosevelt's cabinet asked recently as to what could be done to help Alaska, Sawyer put the project of the construction of the Alaska Highway as the first of his suggestions. As I mentioned in my pamphlet "Golden Highways and Unemployment," the well known authority on Alaska said the building of the road will add people permanently to the population of the territory and, in addition, will bring in hundreds of thousands of dollars annually from visitors.

That the commissioner believes the highway to be economically feasible is clear enough. Specifically he notes the benefits that will accrue by modern transportation facilities to Fairbanks, Anchorage, Seward, Valdez, and other centers. What is more, the Alaska Railroad will earn a profit.

From the point of view of dollars and cents, apart from the humanitarian work opened up by the Alaska Highway, it is urgently necessary.

Portions of the letter of Secretary Dern referred to, are worth quoting. He says:

"The purpose of the proposed project is the construction of a highway to connect the continental United States road system with the existing road system in interior Alaska. Necessarily the route passes through British Columbia and Yukon Territory. While a definite location cannot be laid down without detailed surveys, it is known that in general it will be east of the coastal mountains.

"The tentative route discussed in the report of the special commission follows the existing road up the Fraser River Valley in British Columbia to Hazelton, thence north to the headwaters of the Yukon River near the northern boundary of British Columbia, thence down the valley of the Yukon River through Whitehorse and Dawson, Yukon Territory, and thence westward to Fairbanks, Alaska.

"The existing Richardson Highway in Alaska, with which the project would connect at its northern terminal, comprises, with its branches and extensions, a system of over 900 miles which connects the southern coast of Alaska with the Yukon River at Circle and has branches serving a large section of interior Alaska.

"The total length of the international project measured from Seattle, Washington, to Fairbanks, is estimated to be 2256 miles. Of this distance 1073 miles of road have already been constructed, leaving approximately 1183 miles of new construction to complete the project.

"The uncompleted mileage is subdivided as follows: in British Columbia, 520 miles; in Yukon Territory, 480 miles; in Alaska, 183 miles.

"The commission finds that the highway is a feasible project and can be built at a reasonable cost which should not exceed $2,000,000 for the Alaska section and $12,000,000 for the Canadian section."

MILLION DOLLAR FILM SHOWN AT LOCAL THEATER

Lavish Production Will Feature New English Screen and Stage Star

Lavish Production and Splendid Cast Make "Monte Cristo" Real Special

In preparation for nearly a year before a single scene was filmed, the million dollar production of "The Count of Monte Cristo," which begins a two day showing at the Daly City Theater, Sunday and Monday, January 20 and 21, is hailed as one of the few really big "specials" to come out of Hollywood since the advent of talking pictures, and a forceful answer to the world-wide appeal, for all ages and all tastes.

This lavish filmization of Alexandre Dumas, immortal classic is the most ambitious of the screen achievements to date of Reliance Pictures, Inc., the Harry M. Goetz-Edward Small producing organization, releasing through United Artists, which made "I Cover the Waterfront" and "Palooka," the Jimmie Durante laugh riot.

Search for the ideal personality to play the character of Edmond Dantes, familiar to countless readers of the story in every civilized country, finally resulted in the choice of Robert

Donat, handsome young English screen and stage star, whom American audiences saw as the dashing Thomas Culpeper in "The Private Life of Henry VIII."

Rowland V. Lee, who had the advantage of being the only Hollywood director who had ever worked with Donat—having gone abroad to direct the young star in "The Night in London"—was signed to handle the megaphone. Peverell Marley, who has to his credit the photography of such outstanding examples of cinema art as "The House of Rothschild," "The King of Kings," "The Ten Commandments" and others, was assigned the camera work.

The second attraction is "Menace" with Gertrude Michael; also a color cartoon.

the new course. That serves a double purpose—to prepare the infield for soil to be used in an elaborate scheme of landscape gardening and the avoidance of bringing earth from a distance for the filling for the track. The new strip on which the hooves of blood horses will be pounding before many weeks will be approximately sixty feet east of the present oval. The front stretch will be almost identical with the front stretch of the present inside course, which has been used for training purposes.

The object of the building of the new oval is to make a lawn in front of the picturesque club house to enlarge the lawn in front of the grandstand. People at the races like nothing better than room in which to gather for fanning bees and it is this hankering of the fans that owner Marchbank is satisfying in his comprehensive plans.

The grandstand will be changed in many ways so that the patrons may be able to move about with the least discomfort. Outmoded stairways in front of the large structure will be taken away, with entrance to the grandstand being gained either on ramps at either end or from stairs leading from the ground floor on the interior of the structure.

"Clearing" of unnecessary structural pillars from underneath the grandstand will give an unobstructed view from the "main line" to the race course itself. Changes in the mezzanine floor will make it much more convenient for the fans to make visits to the totalisator machines and at the same time be within a few steps of seating or standing places for witnessing the contests out on the mile course.

Moving of the paddock to the space between the club house and the grandstand will add immeasurably to the compactness of the plant and undoubtedly will evoke the unstinted plaudits of the sport loving throngs that never fail to attend the racing at Tanforan.

DALY CITY GAS TAX ALLOCATED

Agreement Ratified By City Council Is Consummated By Highway Director

Director Earl Lee Kelly of the Department of Public Works today approved an agreement with the City of Daly City whereunder $2000 of state gas tax money will be provided for the maintenance of streets comprising designated state highway routes within the city, and the making of surveys and plans for the proposed improvement of Mission street. The agreement was previously ratified by the city council on November 26, 1934, and was forwarded to Director Kelly by Mayor Smith.

The allocation of state gas tax money is in accordance with legislation enacted in 1933, whereby one-quarter cent of the state gas tax is provided for the maintenance and improvement of state highway routes within incorporated cities. The apportionment is made on a population basis and during the term of the agreement, it is estimated that approximately $9720 will accrue to the city. The agreement covers the biennial period ending June 30, 1935. The city has requested the state to hold the remaining funds in credit for expenditure at a later date.

The board reaffirmed its stand for adequate funds for the department of child hygiene and health.

To adhere more closely to the non-commercial policy of the Congress the board adopted a recommendation of the policy committee that they discourage the solicitation of advertising from local merchants by parent-teacher units or groups of units.

ROYCE SPORTS DEFEAT ROLPHS BY SLIM MARGIN

Jack Gerstenberg, J. U. H. S. Star, Dishes Up Some Flashy Twirling

BINGLE BY REGOLI WINS GAME

(By "Moe" Plansky)

In the first game of the second half of the Seals Stadium Junior League the Royce Sports nine defeated the alert Rolph A. C. Pastimers by the score of five runs to four.

Gerstenberg relieved Petrocchi, the starting pitcher, in the fifth inning, and was complete master of the situation from that point on. He allowed only one measly hit and fanned six opposing batters, besides garnering three hard hit bingles for himself.

J. Regoli, a new addition to the team, came up in the ninth inning, after Gerstenberg had singled, and hit a long triple to the right field fence, scoring the pitcher with the winning tally.

Joe Eggers, just a youngster, and also a new player on the team, handled himself like a veteran around the initial sack. He hit a smashing single to right field to show his presence in the contest.

The three new ball players—Regoli, Eggers and Howard—have strengthened the Royce team considerably, and they should finish very close to the top in the second half.

FATHERS NIGHT GREAT SUCCESS AT HIGH SCHOOL

Appropriate Ceremonies To Mark P. T. A. Observance Of Founders' Day

(By Mrs. Truman Bentley)

The "Fathers' Night" meeting of the High School Parent Teacher Unit was attended by a fairly representative gathering on Tuesday evening of this week in spite of the inclement weather. After the usual routine of a business session was concluded, Mr. C. S. Morris, Dean of San Mateo Junior College and chairman of the Fathers' Councils for this district, was presented.

Dean Morris talked about father and son relationships and the ways in which a more ideal understanding and companionship might be developed and maintained between father and son. The speaker also brought out the value of father members to Parent Teacher Associations, whose membership is so largely feminine.

Following Dean Morris, Mrs. J. J. Garland, president of the Seventeenth District, gave an interesting and most informative talk on the "set-up" of Parent Teacher organization in the international, national and on through state, district and local branches.

Both speakers talked informally on the current legislation affecting the children of the public schools.

Following the meeting in the Little Theater, a pleasant social hour was spent in the Domestic Science room, where home made cake and coffee were served.

All our Unit members, friends and parents of the high school students are urged to support the whist being given this Friday evening in the Senior Room of the high school. A prize for each table will be awarded. Come and enjoy an evening of recreation and good fellowship.

The Jefferson Union High School P. T. A. will observe Founders' Day with a supper and program, Wednesday, February 20. A fuller announcement of this event will be made in a later issue of this newspaper.

COMMUNITY WELFARE ASSOCIATION MEET

The Community Welfare Association held its regular meeting on last Thursday evening. Considerable business was transacted and three new members were admitted.

The whist committee announced that everything was in readiness for the regular monthly whist, which will be held on Thursday evening, January 24, at the club rooms in the Daly City Theater Building on Mission street. Cash and other valuable prizes will be awarded. Do not forget the date.

Few Cases of Arthritis

Can Be Left to Nature

Correction of living habits, proper diet and removal of foci of infection do not always result in disappearance of pain or other symptoms in joints in cases of arthritis, according to Dr. Maurice F. Lautman, who writes on "Preventing Arthritis" in Hygeia Magazine.

"Perhaps one of the greatest difficulties encountered in successfully preventing disease is the human tendency to gamble with health," the author says. "Too much reliance is placed on the hope that nature, if not interfered with, will take care of everything. This belief as far as arthritis is concerned is, unfortunately, frequently disastrous. It is quite true that the individual who is threatened with arthritis has his work cut out for him. The task of preventing arthritis is not an easy one, to be sure, but one has only to contemplate the countless persons who are disabled or hopelessly crippled to realize that as far as arthritis is concerned, the ounce of prevention will be worth tons and tons of cure."

Artificial Chlorophyll

Within a year scientists expect to be able artificially to create chlorophyll, the substance used by plants for transforming solar into chemical energy. Dr. Paul Rothmund, research fellow of Kettering Foundation of Antioch college, recently reported to the Academy of Sciences that synthetic production of this substance, the basis of plant life, appears to be only a matter of months.

Towns Have Many Autos

It has been found that it is in small towns of 1,000 to 5,000 people that the largest number of cars is owned in proportion to the population. The percentage is least in towns of 50,000 to 100,000.

Twenty-five thousand miles was covered by air.

The SERA, the federal census bureau and the state department of public health have opened a campaign to see that every baby born in California in 1934 gets its citizenship papers. After an absence of half a century, a large herd of sea elephants has returned to the Santa Barbara channel. Representative Frank Buck, California Democrat, has introduced a bill into the lower house of Congress which would permit an air transport company to hold contracts on both a main transcontinental route and a main coast route. Irvington, Alameda County, suffered from gold fever for one day. All-Important Little Dinner Hats

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Its attractive exterior conceals within its depths pockets for your vanity case, your "hanky" and your purse.

The hat and muff pictured are fashioned of brown velvet with bandings of gold sequins. The little veil is stiffened just enough to impart sprightliness. Muff and hat sets of this type made up of maline and flowers are ideal for bridesmaid wear.

FROM the supreme court of fashion comes the ultimatum that with the formal dinner gown some sort of a flattering little hat must be worn. Likewise a pretty frivolous and feminine bit of headgear is an absolute necessity for wear during the cocktail hour, at the theater and for cafe dancing and other midwinter social events. So on with the dinner hat!

Just how might a dinner hat be defined? Well, for one thing it is ornamental if not useful. Yes, indeed, this whimsical little headpiece simply must add a truly decorative touch to the costume, which it does most dramatically this season. It may be created of most anything fine and fanciful, a wisp of tulle, a bandeau of glittering sequins or sparkling rhinestones with perhaps a dash of velvet or taffeta, satin or gleaming lame. Most important of all is a veil. By all means add a veil, a flirtatious veil, a cunning veil, a veil with a "come hither" look, a veil that flatters in that it accents your good points and conceals the others. In short, it must be a veil that crowns your head and hat with glory.

The illustration offers a few hints as to dinner hat trends. The fascinating little hat with a muff—of course, you sighted the muff at first glance, for it is so new, so chic and so charming it needs must attract attention. "Lucky muff," they call them, brings good fortune to the one wearing it, so the story goes in fashionland. A very versatile muff it is, too, for it is as practical and useful as it is pretty, since

QUILTED TAFFETA By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Designers are doing many interesting things these days with quilted and stitched effects. It is not only that dresses and coats are trimmed with quilted collars, cuffs and belt, for the latest movement is for wraps which are all-over quilted. In the picture the coat which is styled with a flaring hemline and cape-sleeves according to latest fashion dictates, is made of quilted cerise taffeta. The dress is of the same taffeta minus the quilting.

Collars and Cuffs

New collars and cuffs show a fishnet effect, and another splendid idea—there is a wider assortment of collars to be had without the necessity of buying cuffs, too.

Dinner Gown

An unusual material is used for a luxurious dinner gown of white taffeta with stripes of chenille and gold lame.

HAT BRIM SMALLER; BACK IS TURNED UP

There's an epidemic of small vivid hats and scarfs to brighten up the winter scene.

Brimmed hats are still with us, but the brims are smaller and turned up in back, so as not to interfere with the sables and the silver fox.

Debutantes are going for the high-hat Cossack caps of corduroy and velvet, with matching neckerchief or Ascot, to wear with dark winter suits and coats.

They are round, Russian effects, high-crowned and brimless, that have an undeniable dash. They come in such cheering colors as scarlet, emerald green, charrtruse, coral and old rose, and add nice accents of color to sober winter costumes.

Popular Afternoon Frock Is of Gray Waffle Crepe

Gray waffle crepe combined with navy taffeta is used to create a very smart formal afternoon frock. The navy blue taffeta forms the high waisted bodice which has a Pierrot collar shirred on a cord and fastens with a small knot at the back.

The ankle-length skirt of gray waffle crepe features a slit on the left side to just below the knee. A box coat of the crepe has wide and full three-quarter sleeves lined with navy taffeta. Gray suede pumps are worn with the dress.

Shades in Spring Hosiery Are Inspired by Cuisine

Fashion will turn to the cuisine for inspiration in the spring hosiery shades. Among the new colors will be "ice tea," "ice coffee," "egg nog," and "frappe." The first is a dark suntan, the second a medium suntan, the third a nude evening shade and the fourth a light neutral shade.

Since fabric colors will be bright for spring, hosiery tints will show a livelier quality.

Skirt Formula

Straight and narrow, slashed and slithering—this is the skirt formula for morning, afternoon and evening. Lengths vary with hours.

Entomologists Tell Us Things About Mosquito

Fishermen have long known when fish bite best. Now the periods when mosquitoes bite best, or worst, have been revealed by entomologists of the United States Department of Agriculture.

There are mosquitoes that bite only at night, others that bite only during the day, some bite best at sunrise and some best at sundown.

There is one grain of comfort for the mosquito-ridden citizen. Only the female mosquito bites. The male feeds on nectar and similar substances.

Here are some mosquito "schedules":

The "rain barrel" or common mosquito bites only at night and can find her victims no matter how dark it is. When flying it makes that irritating singing noise which is familiar to every one.

The yellow fever mosquito usually bites close to the ground or attacks from behind, and often crawls under clothing to bite. It bites only in the daytime and is busiest early in the morning and late in the afternoon. It flies quietly. It will bite indoors all day.

The fresh-water marsh mosquito known under the scientific name Mansonia, a severe biter, is busiest just at dusk. It spends the day in the grass and will bite during the day if disturbed.

Malarial mosquitoes will bite all night long and sometimes, too, in the daytime, especially on dark days.

More Than One Million
People Enjoy California
Winter Playgrounds

With more than a million persons motoring each season into the snow sport areas, California's winter playground has established a definite place in the state's array of recreational attractions. Recent storms have brought snow of varying but adequate depths for winter sports in practically all of the favorite localities for these exhilarating pastimes, according to the touring bureau of the California State Automobile Association. Latest information as to road and snow conditions should be obtained when planning a trip. With the spread of interest in winter sports, a number of localities now provide an array of sports facilities, equipment, and accommodations. A statement by the association touring bureau briefly reviews some of the principal areas as follows:

Yosemite Valley, reached by All Year Highway from Merced or by train or stage, is unrivaled in natural beauty and completeness and variety of sports facilities. Scenic charm is also an outstanding feature of snow play in Sequoia and General Grant National Parks, reached by highway out of Fresno, and the same is true of Calaveras Big Trees State Park, on the Ebbetts Pass road above Angels Camp.

The Sonora-Long Barn area ranks among the most popular and accessible, with various favorite winter sports localities such as Long Barn, Twain-Harte, and Sylvan Lodge, by the Sonora Pass road a short trip out of Sonora.

Snow sports are conducted by the Placerville Ski Club at three areas on the Placerville road, U. S. 50, at Sexton, Pacific House, and Kyburz; by the Auburn Ski Club at Cisco, on the Auburn road, U. S. 40; by the Tahoe

Ski Club at Tahoe City; and by the Truckee Ski Club at Truckee.

In the Shasta area are the grounds of the Mount Shasta Snowmen, five miles east of Mount Shasta City. Mineral and Child's Meadows, on the Lassen Volcanic Highway out of Red Bluff, are scenic and popular sports areas. And up in Amador County, Antelope Springs is a center of winter sports activities.

DO NOT PASS OTHER
CAR ON THE RIGHT

Motor vehicle drivers are again reminded by the California Highway Patrol that it is unlawful to pass a vehicle on its right side where there are two or more lanes of traffic going in each direction.

Passing on the right on a state or county highway outside of the incorporated areas is strictly forbidden.

Several accidents have occurred in recent weeks, it was stated by Chief Cato, because of infractions of this law.

"It is always dangerous to pass another car on the right, said a bulletin issued by the patrol.

Authority to pass on the right only on city streets is given in Section 125c of the California Vehicle Act as follows:

In the event two or more vehicles on a street or highway are moving in the same direction in two or more parallel lanes, whether marked or unmarked, upon the right half of the paved portion of a city street having space for two or more lines of traffic in each direction, the provisions of subdivision (a) and (b) of this section shall not be considered as prohibiting the vehicles in one such lane overtaking or passing the vehicles in another such lane either upon the right or the left.

CHAPTER IV

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE
The day of the Handicap! Thousands upon thousands of people jammed the stands, swarmed in and around the paddock, mobbed the bookmakers. In the little barn, Dan was giving last minute instructions to Ted Williams, the jockey to ride "Broadway Bill."

Now GO ON WITH THE STORY
The day of the Handicap! Thousands upon thousands of people jammed the stands, swarmed in and around the paddock, mobbed the bookmakers. In the little barn, Dan was giving last minute instructions to Ted Williams, the jockey to ride "Broadway Bill."

"Now remember what I told you—don't try to force him. Let him alone and he's as gentle as a baby. At the post—don't do a thing. Never use the whip on him. He'll get away all right."

"Suppose he don't?" asked Williams.

"Needn't worry," Alice answered. "He will."

"If you use the whip," added Dan, "we're back." He doesn't like it and he'll balk."

MUSIC TO WILLIAMS' EARS. "Is that so?" And then Williams was ready to go. He smiled and wished Dan luck. Dan grinned widely. Alice smiled. If ever there was bliss—these two humans had it.

"Old man with the whiskers," said Dan heavenward, "I thank you." He grabbed Alice's hands and began to dance. "We're off! Nothing can stop us now. Oh, boy!"

In the stands were Colonel Pettigrew, Happy McGuire and Edna, the boarding housekeeper. The Colonel prayed fervently that "Broadway Bill" might win. For if "Bill" failed to have his nose in front at the finish—well—the Colonel would have to marry Edna, a very undesirable match for the Colonel. Especially as the Colonel had a wife somewhere else. But if a man has to live by promises—shall we blame the Colonel?

The announcer's voice rolled smoothly into the microphone. "The crowd is gay and excited. The Imperial Handicap—carrying a purse of $25,000 will be run this afternoon. It's the fifth race on the program." The announcer's voice went on.

The stately procession began. The jockeys in their gay silk colors; the proud, prancing horses. The clarion call of the bugle. Banners waving on high. The milling crowds. Hearts beat faster. Blood pounded in the veins.

The announcer breathed tensely in the mike. "They're just about ready." The horses, eager, willing, strained at their reins. Knuckles showed white on jockeys' hands. A dead silence... only the snorting and puffing of the horses... then... the bell!

Like a catapult—six horses were going! Into the skies rang the cry. "They're off!"

Clatter, clatter... zooming, booming drums... as the horses' hoofs beat into the hard dirt. The crowd, now, was a mighty, moving thing. All the pent up emotions of the mob rose in a roar... "Broadway Bill" in the lead!

Dan, now a part of the surging mass, screamed—screamed to the high heavens. "Come on, 'Bill'! Come on, baby!"

"Broadway Bill" pounded forward—a flash of black—his long legs cutting the air like the blades of a windmill. On his tail, "Sun Up" and "Gallant Lady" fought for the lead... bitterly... savagely... each inch a treasure... each inch a step nearer to fortune...

But now Williams was playing his part. Slowly... slowly... his hands tightened on the reins... the bit began to pull on "Bill's" mouth... his head pulled back gradually... the other horses crept up... nearer... nearer... then passed...

Dan watched, terror gripping his heart. "Let him alone, you son-of-a-bitch—let him alone!"

The announcer spoke swiftly. "Sun Up" and "Gallant Lady"—still leading. "Broadway Bill" now dropping back. He trails the field."

A battle was being fought on the track. Not between horse and horse—but between horse and man—horses and rider. Williams cursed as "Bill" slumped against the reins...

slowly, the leather slipped through the jockey's hands... there was no bulging "Broadway Bill" The announcer's voice rose now. "Here comes Broadway Bill!"

His fourth! He's third—and still going strong!"

The roar of the crowd was deafening. With every step "Bill" took, he gained. Wild... wild... the mob was insane.

Desperately, Williams tried to tighten the reins. "Bill" fought... fought with every muscle in his strong body... slowly, surely, he won. Williams had set the pace and couldn't hold it... "Broadway Bill" crept up... nearer the line... nearer... nearer...

"Broadway Bill!" came the scream from the wild crowd.

"He's ahead!" shouted the announcer. "He's ahead! He's beating her to the line!"

The judges in the stand set forward tensely. History was being made. Their eyes fixed to the track... then... like the crack of a cannon—BOOM! ROAR! ROAR! ROAR! "Broadway Bill" was over! Over! Over! "Broadway Bill" had won!

"He beat 'Gallant Lady' to the finish by— the announcer's voice was cut short. Something had happened. A horse had fallen... fallen hard to the dirt. "Bill!" Williams on hands and knees, head lowered, crawled across the track from where he had fallen. "He fell! 'Broadway Bill' fell! He was over—he won—and ten yards past the line he dropped! He hasn't moved! Wait a minute!" The crowd became strangely silent.

Dan would only believe the doctor. "Too much for him. His heart burst. He was dead, you might say, when he hit the dirt."

Dan allowed his eyes to rest for one moment on the fallen hero. Then, dazed, he turned. Alice, tears in her eyes, stood near him. "Dan," she murmured. Put Dan didn't hear. The announcer had learned now. "—you couldn't believe it, folks, unless you had seen it run. You'd have to actually see 'Broadway Bill' diving in there—like a fury. It was a race that will go down in track history as a tribute to a great horse—that wouldn't lose."

Alice followed Dan to the barn, where only a few moments before "Bill" had been a living, breathing, vital thing. Dan turned, his eyes

red. He tried to smile, but it was a futile attempt.

"Well—" his words were shaky, "he won, didn't he?"

Alice's voice replied. "We knew he would, didn't we?"

Dan breathed heavily, spoke brokenly. "Gosh—that was a great fella."

Alice cried now. "Y—yes, Dan—" She was in his arms, clinging to him, frankly sobbing.

Back in Higginsville, old J. L. listened to the radio. The announcer's voice was expressive. "Dan Brooks was last seen pushing away from the side of the dead 'Broadway Bill.' You have never seen a man so utterly..."

J. L. snapped the radio off. He turned to Margaret. "I should think you'd want to go down there to him now, Margaret."

Margaret turned slowly from the window. She spoke slowly, triumphantly. "He'll be coming back here to me—and he'll be glad to say that 'Broadway Bill' is out of it."

But Dan Brooks didn't return. He had broken his tether and he was free—free! And when the divorce proceedings came through, Margaret was not heartbroken, merely hurt as her bubble of vanity burst.

Something intangible burst, too, in old J. L. He called his clan around him for the sad news. All of the Higgins enterprises were being sold. The gigantic kingdom of Higgins was collapsing. There were protests, of course. But old J. L. was adamant.

Suddenly, from the Higgins drive, came a cry. A joyous, glad cry. "Hey, Princess!"

Alice, her heart beating wildly, looked up at old J. L. "Don't," said J. L. drily. "Be an idiot like your father!" Alice rushed to old J. L. and threw her arms around him. "Going to miss you, darling," said old J. L. "And him, too!"

And then she was gone. J. L. sank wearily in a chair, his heart filled with a vast loneliness. The roar of Dan Brooks' car outside was like the cry of youth from a musty past. He closed his heart, his ears, his mind... no longer old, jumped from his chair and rushed to the window. "Wait!" he shouted. "Wait for me!"

SOME QUESTIONS
AND ANSWERSSome Little Known Matters
That Should Prove of General Interest

(By Maude Larue Ives)

Question: Of what use is the humble bee?

Answer: It aids in the cross-pollination of plants and is the only insect which can fertilize the clover. Bumble bees were taken to Australia and New Zealand especially for that purpose, for, without them, clover could not be successfully grown in those countries.

Question: What is a mangel?

Answer: A coarse variety of beet, extensively grown as food for cattle.

Question: What city is the center of the Irish linen industry?

Answer: Belfast, Ireland, containing more power looms and spinning mills than are found in all the rest of Ireland.

Question: What are some of the most famous bells in the world?

Answer: The largest bell in the world is the "Tsar Kolokol" of Moscow, Russia, weighing 193 tons. It was never rung, however, as it was cracked in the making and a piece eleven tons in weight was broken off.

The most famous bell in the United States is the Liberty Bell, which pealed forth the news of the signing of the Declaration of Independence and the birth of a nation.

"Big Ben," in the Westminster tower of the Houses of Parliament in London, weighs thirteen and one-half tons, and was cast in 1858. It is recorded that on one occasion Big Ben boomed forth thirteen strokes at the hour of midnight, and numerous pieces of fiction have centered their plots around the alleged incident.

The Cathedral of Notre Dame,

Montreal, Canada, has a bell weighing fourteen and one-half tons.

The great bell of the Cologne Cathedral, cast from the metal of cannon captured from the French in 1870, weighs twenty-seven and one-half tons.

In Burma there is a pagoda with a bell weighing eighty tons.

All of these bells of great size are sounded by being struck; they are not movable.

Question: What is the Appian Way?

Answer: This famous highway of ancient times was named for the Roman censor, Appius Claudius, who began its construction in 312 B. C. This broad historic highway, leading directly from the gates of Rome, was paved with huge blocks of lava laid on a bed of broken stone cemented with lime. Portions of the road are yet in use.

Question: To what flower family does the apple blossom belong?

Answer: The rose family.

Generator Rate

With the advent of the automatic cutout, burning the car lights in daytime to keep down the generator charging rate does not accomplish the desired results, according to the emergency road service of the California State Automobile Association.

What happens when lights are used for a long period is creation of excessive heat in the storage battery, shortening its life. The proper procedure is to have a competent service man adjust the generator charging rate in accordance with the particular driving requirements.

Slipping Clutch

If the clutch is slipping and the motor runs swiftly while the car moves slowly or not at all the condition should be remedied at once, advises the emergency road service of the California State Automobile Association.

Driving with a slipping clutch for even a short distance will cause additional damage.

NRA AND THE NEW YEAR

American business will move ahead vigorously under the NRA in 1935. This is the consensus of leaders of trade and industry based upon successful experience in operating under NRA codes of fair competition formulated during the year and a half that have passed since President Roosevelt approved the Recovery Act in June 1933.

Business optimism concerning 1935 is based upon concrete results achieved through NRA in the year just closed—the first full calendar year of business operation under the codes. The extension of the life of NRA by Congress is taken as a foregone conclusion. Employer, employee and the consuming public recognize in the Recovery Administration the instrumentality for stabilization of our national life.

In attempting to forecast the future of business in 1935 it is well to recount a few of the achievements of NRA which justify further optimism. The re-employment of millions of men, shortening of work weeks, the raising of minimum wages, the addition of billions of dollars to the national income, the elimination of child labor, the wiping out of suicidal competitive practices—these are triumphs of NRA that will stand repeating.

Of great importance at this time in estimating the trend of business in the New Year is a survey recently conducted among business publications. The volume of business done in the first quarter of 1935 will be larger in most lines, in the opinion of editors of leading industrial publications, as revealed in this survey by Associated Business Papers, Inc., according to the Associated Press.

Generally, better earnings were seen as likely accompaniment of the rising activity, by editors of 125 publications which are members of the Association of Business Papers. In some cases, it was felt, profits may not increase in proportion to the greater gross because of advanced operating costs through higher wage and material bills and price instability.

Here is a summary of some of the predictions made by editors in touch with special lines of business. Department store sales are expected to continue their recent gains into the first quarter of 1935; hardware and shoe buying for the spring is already progressing in increased volume; production of shoes, which in 1934 was only 10,000,000 pairs behind 1929, is expected to duplicate the 1934 performance in early 1935.

Automotive trade papers predict a material pick-up in their industry in the first quarter of 1935 as compared with last year. The steel outlook is encouraging, according to the heads of publications in that industry. Editors following the machine tool trade consider the prospects for the coming quarter bright in respect both to volume and profits. Wholesalers of electrical apparatus, after a rise in business in 1934 estimated at 35 per cent, are expected to show a still further improvement in coming months.

Building-trade editors see some confusion in the first quarter as the industry awaits clarification of public-works plans, and the passage of needed mortgage legislation in many states. For the full year, however, it is felt that residential building might even triple the 1934 totals, while remodeling may be twice as active as in 1934.

Life Insurance Gain Measure of Recovery. The business barometer of life insurance is indicating further economic recovery in 1935, Frederick H. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, said. Life insurance writings for 1934, Mr. Ecker explained, rose about 10 per cent, and prospects are bright for 1935.

"I feel that, as economic recovery takes hold a little more firmly and spontaneously," he said, "the Nation's productive activity, employment, money income, and real income—and with all these, the volume of life insurance demand by the public—will continue to move upward in an increasingly impressive way."

"We can see many reassuring facts on the economic horizon. Among these, the outstanding one in my judgment, is the increase in the combined national income, which for 1934, according to our economists, probably will exceed that of 1933 by something like 15 per cent. Labor income in the United States is also expected to show an increase over 1933, bringing it to a total of about $35,000,000,000."

News Guild May Give Data On January 17. An opportunity will be given the American Newspaper Guild on January 17 to present data on wages, hours and working conditions in the newspaper publishing industry for use in connection with proposed wage and hour amendments to the code.

The Administrative Officer has delegated Dr. Gustav Peck, Assistant to the Administrative Officer on Employment Problems, to represent him in association with the Deputy Administrator in charge of the code, who will preside at the hearing.

On December 5 a hearing was held by Deputy Administrator Jack B. Tate, to secure data upon which to base a determination relating to the proposed wage and hour amendments. At this time representatives of the American Newspaper Publishers Association presented a wage study, but because of the withdrawal of Guild representatives, no wage report was made by this group.

Sharp Rise Is Seen in Output of Motors. With the automobile manufacturers preparing for the heaviest January production for any corresponding month in five years, it was evident that this industry was providing the high spot in business activity in the final days of the year.

Speeding up of the motor car plants was attributed to a definite increase in demand as shown by bookings for new models and a virtual clearing up of stocks of 1934 cars.

The indicated January spurt would follow steadily mounting activity at the automobile factories during December.

December output is now estimated at around 150,000 cars, a larger figure than had previously been expected, and an indicated increase of nearly 80 per cent compared with last year.

Drug Sales Volume Shows 10 to 20 Per Cent Gain. The drug industry through the year 1934 will show sales gains from 10 to 20 per cent over 1933, Dr. W. E. Weiss, chairman of the board and general manager of Sterling Products, Inc., declared.

Reports that have come to him from representatives in the field in every section of the United States and Canada, Dr. Weiss stated, indicate that the business map has undergone many favorable changes in 1934 and that prospects for 1935 are "exceedingly bright."

Fear is being replaced by confidence to a great extent, Dr. Weiss said. "Even the wildest optimists do not hope for an immediate solution of the unemployment problem, but a great many business men with whom I have talked are hopeful that unemployment slack will be considerably taken up before another year rolls around," he added.

Biggest Shoe Gain Since '31 Reported. The biggest upturn in business since 1931 in the A. E. Nettleton Company, of Syracuse, and its thirty-five stores throughout the nation has been reported by Henry W. Cook, president of the firm.

Predicting "even a bigger year in 1935," Mr. Cook said that business during the last twelve months has given the firm "a wholesome and encouraging outlook."

"Our business this year," Mr. Cook said, has been the best since 1931. Factory shipments and also aggregate sales at thirty-five stores throughout the country show a gain of 10 per cent over 1933. Indications point to even better results next year.

"People are spending more freely than at any time in the last four years, and there is in evidence a tendency on the part of consumers to get back to quality merchandise. "Nettleton factory activity has been picking up since September, with operations now on a five day week basis and number of employees normal."

Employees Protected Against Wage Losses. Employees in coded industrial establishments must be paid for interruptions of work beyond their control when an employer requires them to be present and ready for work, under provisions of an administrative order announced by the National Recovery Board. The order lists causes of interruptions to work over which presumably employees have no control. They are: breakdowns, delays, time spent waiting for materials or waiting for the loading or unloading of railroad cars or other vehicles of transportation, and interruptions in activity due to other causes.

LESSON SERMON OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Life" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday, January 20, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The Golden Text will be: "The life was manifested, and we have seen it, and bear witness, and shew unto you that eternal life, which was with the Father, and was manifested unto us" (I John 1:2). Other Bible citations will include: "O Lord, my God, I cried unto thee, and thou hast healed me. O Lord, thou hast brought up my soul from the grave: thou hast kept me alive, that I should not go down to the pit" (Psalms 30: 2, 3).

The Lesson Sermon will also include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Mind is the same Life, Love, and wisdom yesterday, and today, and forever. Matter and its effects—sin, sickness, and death—are states of mortal mind which act, react, and then come to a stop. They are not facts of Mind" (p. 283).

CLARA BARTON AND AMERICAN RED CROSS

Organization And Evolution As Carried On In This Country Is Described

(By Maude Larue Ives)

The Red Cross Societies all over the enlightened portion of the world had for its original object solely the rendering of aid to sick and wounded soldiers on battlefields and in military hospitals in time of war.

Clara Barton, who devoted her life to the good of humanity, came in touch with the members of the International Committee of the Red Cross while in Switzerland in 1869. Encouraged by them and inspired by the work of the Red Cross during the Franco-German War, she returned to America in 1873 and began at once the organization of an American branch of the society. She became its first president and held that position until 1904.

To Miss Barton is due the honor of having originated the clause in the Red Cross constitution whereby the society may extend relief in calamities other than war—such as famines, earthquakes, floods and pestilence. She took charge of the relief work in the yellow fever outbreak in Florida in 1897; the Johnstown flood, 1889; the Russian and Armenian famines of 1891 and 1896; the Spanish American and Boer wars, and the Galveston flood of 1900. The German emperor recognized her services by decorating her with the Iron Cross of Germany, at that time a greatly coveted decoration.

The American Red Cross Society was incorporated by the Congress of the United States in 1905, by which act the government practically assumed the right to control its operations; for the law which effected the incorporation dissolved the first organization, which had been established by Clara Barton in 1881.

The President of the United States is now president of the American Red Cross Society, but its detailed operation is in the hands of officers of a committee whose chairman is named by the President. Every dollar given to it must be accounted for to officials of the government.

In 1913 Congress appropriated the sum of $400,000 toward the erection of a national Red Cross building in the city of Washington, conditioned on the raising of an additional $300,000 by the society. This task was easily accomplished.

The American National Junior Red Cross was organized during the World War, for the purpose of allowing the American school children to participate in the Red Cross war service. It has been continued as a permanent department of the Red Cross, with a program for peace time service. Its aims, as outlined in a bulletin issued from the national headquarters, are: (1) To enlist American school children in the service of suffering children, both in the local community and in the countries devastated by war.

SOME BULL!

Charles G. Melton, a millionaire of Derby, England, was seriously gored by one of his prize bulls.

(2) To secure thereby for American children those rich attitudes and habits of mind which can grow only out of unselfish service.

(3) To lay a sure foundation of mutual understanding among American citizens of the coming generation within our own communities and between them and the citizens of other nations, whereby the peace and prosperity of the world may be maintained.

(4) To co-operate with the schools in suggestion of a common motive and unified activity instead of individualism in purpose and work, this social consciousness widening from the school group to the nations of the world.

The official organ of the Junior Red Cross is the Bulletin. It is a publication of sixteen to twenty pages, issued monthly for nine months each year. The subscription price is fifty cents for the school year. There are about 6,500,000 members of the Junior Red Cross.

Clara Barton passed away about twenty-three years ago, but the great work begun by her will live on and on, reaching out to humanity and eventually bringing all into one fold of love and unity.

Watch Cooling System

"Out of sight, out of mind," is an old adage that applies to one new development in motor car design, namely, that of putting the radiator filler under the hood, says the National Automobile Club.

It requires a more constant check on the motor heat indicator on the part of the car owner to keep abreast of the cooling system's need for more water.

TRIM SLIP HAS
SPECIAL POINTS

PATTERN 2053

Even under the sheerest frock this slip should prove sufficient unto itself, for it's designed with two full, back skirts so as to be absolutely shadow-proof. The shoulder straps are cut in one piece with the bodice to prevent them from slipping at the shoulders. The darts under the arms give comfortable fullness over the bust. And with the skirt opening from below the hips to the hem at the back there should be no split seams to trouble you after a few weeks' wear. It's a lovely design for satin or heavy crepe, and if you would like something a little more feminine, why not add lace edging at the hem and the neckline?

Pattern 2053 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48. Size 34 takes 3 1/2 yards 39 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

SOLE SUPPORT

A shiftless specimen of humanity came along the street one morning, and joining a group at the corner announced that he was going to leave town—said he could not live in it any longer.

Some one asked him what was the matter.

SYNOPSIS

Theodore Gatlin adopts a baby, which he names "Penelope," in a final effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But his wife has never wanted her, and their affairs end in the divorce court. Ten-year-old Penelope is given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin. At a baseball game a ball strikes Penelope on the nose. Mrs. Gatlin spirits the child to Europe. Gatlin retires from business, wills Penelope all his money, and is about to begin a search for his daughter when a motor accident ends his life. Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt is a rising young psychiatrist. He is presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" was in part responsible. McNamara does not think she is a respectable criminal and obtains Burt's expert testimony in court. Lanny, the doctor's faithful office nurse, is won over to her cause despite Nance's hard-boiled exterior.

CHAPTER III

Stephen elbowed his way into the courtroom. Nance Belden saw him, and from behind the bars of the prisoner's dock waved to him and called cheerily: "Hello, Steve."

"Silence—you!" the bailiff warned her.

Nance made a face at him; then, observing Stephen lay finger to lip in a warning gesture, she tossed her head, tilted her chin and bent upon the judge a cold and defiant stare.

The bailiff opened the door of the prisoners' dock and beckoned to her. "Nance Belden," the judge queried, "have you anything to say as to why sentence should not be pronounced upon you?"

"I've got a mouthpiece," the girl retorted. "Ask him!"

From a chair beside the counsel's table a young man arose. "May I please the court, the public defender has withdrawn from this case and I am now counsel for the defendant. My name is David Tyrrell. I am reliably informed, your honor, that, following a fair and impartial trial, this defendant has been convicted of the crime of which she stands accused and is now before the court for sentence."

"Mr. Tyrrell, your client is now under a suspended sentence from the Superior court, for the crime of grand theft. She was there sentenced to two years in San Quentin penitentiary, but paroled for two years. Less than two months have passed since she was paroled, and today she stands before the court for sentence under a charge of petit larceny. The defendant evidently is incorrigible, and I intend to remand her to the Superior court for commitment under the old charge of grand theft."

"I thank your honor. I have been retained in this apparently hopeless case for the purpose of adducing a sound reason why this defendant should be neither sentenced under the present charge nor remanded to the Superior court for commitment under sentence for the former crime. To that end, your honor, I ask leave to present an expert witness to testify to the mental irresponsibility of my client."

"One moment, please, Mr. Tyrrell. Your action would be merely wasting your time and that of the court. I shall remand the prisoner immediately to the Superior court, with a request to the judge thereof that her case be taken up immediately. I sentence this prisoner to ninety days in the county jail, but the sentence will be suspended during her good behavior for one year from date. A bailiff will conduct you, your expert witness and the defendant at once to Department Number Six of the Superior court, and I will immediately telephone to the judge and request that he listen to your expert witness."

As they entered the Superior court the judge glanced at a document which evidently had reached him from the police magistrate's court. "Mr. Tyrrell, I understand you desire to present some expert testimony in an effort to prove the mental irresponsibility of this defendant, Nance Belden. I may state that I have already been in telephonic communication with Doctor Blethen, and have had a complete report from him on this case. You may proceed, however, to present your side of it. Who is your witness?"

"Dr. Stephen Burt, your honor," and Tyrrell indicated Stephen.

"I know all about Doctor Burt," the judge said pleasantly. "I had him in my court a year ago as an expert witness in the matter of the Carter will case," he nodded to Stephen. "This court is very much interested in getting at the facts in this case and it is obliged to you for your voluntary attendance. What is your professional opinion of this girl's mentality?"

"I have not had a fair opportunity to study her, your honor," Stephen replied, "hence I am not in a position to give the court more than a snap decision."

"How long have you studied her?" "About thirty minutes, your honor."

"H'm-m-m! Doctor Blethen examined her on three different occasions, his examinations embodying a total of about six hours' time."

"With all due deference to my distinguished colleague," Stephen replied with his singularly charming smile, "six hours is not usually considered more than sufficient time to form an approximate opinion, which subsequent investigations may set at variance. If this girl were to become a patient of mine today, I should devote many weeks to an effort to demonstrate that my original opinion regarding her was in error."

"As she crazy, Doctor Burt?" "Not in the sense that we customarily employ the term, your honor. I should say, rather, that her psychology is abnormal, that she is neither moral nor immoral, but unmoral. For instance, when I asked her why she stole silk stockings, she told me quite frankly that she did it because there were runs in all her old stockings. That reply was very illuminating. As I talked further with her I noted her valiant moods and quickly came to the conclusion that she is suffering from dissociation by reason of shock. In other words, this girl, who doubtless in happier days possessed a single personality and that a normal one, has now acquired a secondary personality. In plain English, two entirely different people inhabit the one body.

"The first personality, which I shall call A, is the result of acquired instincts, habit, education, and repressions imposed on society by convention and the code of procedure which we call morals. This has been submerged wholly or in part by a second personality, which I shall call B, and when B personality rules her she has amnesia for what I have termed her acquired or normal instincts. Out of her unconscious mind then emerge, as definite impulses to action, the old antipathies to such action, which we medical men term conflicts."

"Let me illustrate. We will assume that at this moment she is possessed of her personality A, and in this state she realizes she has runs in all her stockings—that she must have new stockings, but she sees some stockings which she can readily steal. Normal people often have impulses to steal, your honor, and Nance Belden has an impulse to steal the stockings she needs."

"But here a factor intervenes. She has been taught, from the day she manifested thought, that it is wrong to steal, and this moral lesson has impressed itself upon her conscious mind. With repetition, the thought, becoming a habit, dropped out of her conscious mind to become conserved in her unconscious mind. Conserved there, it became a definite part of her personality—her soul, if you will. Thereafter it was not necessary to remind herself that it was wrong to steal. She knew it was, without having to think about it at all, and this unconscious knowledge was her protection in the fleeting moment of temptation, aroused by her definite need and the knowledge that, lacking money to buy the stockings, and faced with the absolute necessity for acquiring stockings, the sole alternative was to steal them. She got no further than that vague, conscious thought. Immediately the knowledge that it was immoral to steal—that nothing could possibly excuse theft—rose out of her unconscious mind and became a dominating conscious thought. Now, right there appeared the mental phenomenon known among psychiatrists as a complex or conflict. In all conflicts the stronger wins—and in this particular mental conflict, the will not to steal won instantly. It was an older habit of thought. It was an acquired instinct, whereas the impulse to steal was not a habit of thought, because she had never indulged in theft! We say we do a thing on instinct, but really we act after due, if inculcated, brief cogitation, based on reason, which is the result of habituation to doing certain things."

"This Girl, Who Doubtless in Happier Days Possessed a Single Personality and That a Normal One, Has Now Acquired a Secondary Personality."

"This defendant, your honor, is a healthy girl as far as I can judge from outward appearances. But she is what you often hear referred to as high-strung. And she is so unusually intelligent that I readily realized there must have been a very potent reason for the commission of such an unintelligent act as theft. So immediately I commenced to question her as to her family, her past.

"She could tell me nothing. She is not at all sure that her name is Nance Belden, and I am satisfied that her inability to throw any light on her genesis was not born of a desire to withhold that information. I believe she has amnesia for a certain period of her life, and we know that such a condition is usually the result of a severe mental shock. In such cases the patient usually has an intense desire to forget absolutely the unhappy, unpleasant or terrifying episode or person that produced the shock, and so intense is the power of will in certain highly sensitive people, women particularly, that not infrequently they succeed! Thus amnesia is produced. It is, in a sense, autohypnosis, and your honor undoubtedly is aware that people who have been hypnotized remember nothing of what occurs during the hypnotic state."

"I believe I follow you," the judge murmured.

"I have shown you why the normal Nance Belden would not steal. But now comes that mental shock I spoke of, with consequent amnesia for all of her life that has preceded it; or it may be a part of that life. With the amnesia comes what we term dissociation or mental disintegration. The unconscious overwhelms the conscious; the acquired instincts of morality—social usage—drop out of the conscious into the unconscious, and the thoughts and impulses that have lain dormant and defeated in the unconscious are now in the saddle. Unfortunates who have acquired dual personalities or a dissociated personality go from one personality into the other and back again, with or without amnesia for the preceding state."

"At a time when Nance Belden's second personality (B) ruled her, and she decided to steal those stockings, she was acting under the impulse of an idea that could not be combated. To steal

Mystery of the Old
Carpet Bag

ONE hundred thousand dollars in gold, packed in iron boxes, and these in turn placed in a safe with a Chubb lock, was stolen during the trip from Folkestone to Boulogne.

That is to say, the gold was in the safe when it left the office of the express company and it was not there when it reached its destination.

To add to the mystification there were only three keys to the safe and the whereabouts of each one was known.

The traffic superintendent in London had one; the head of the Folkestone railway had another, and the captain of the Folkestone-Boulogne boat had the third.

The outside of the safe gave some evidence of having been tampered with, but the iron boxes, instead of holding gold dust, were filled with small shot.

When had the gold been stolen? Where had the change been made from the gold to the shot?

Who could have been guilty of this audacious robbery? These were the three questions which troubled the police of two countries.

It was annoying, irritating and all of the other things in the calendar.

The boats running between the two ports were carefully searched. The waiting rooms at both ends of the line were subjected to a keen scrutiny, and altogether the detectives used up all of the tricks of the trade in trying to find a clue to this astonishing theft.

Finally they found an article that cast a ray of light on the case.

It was in the form of an old carpet bag which was located in the station at Folkestone.

The ownership of the bag was traced to a man named Peter Agar.

That in itself meant nothing.

The great big fact was that the photograph of Peter Agar occupied a place of honor in the Rogues gallery at Scotland Yard.

Numerous copies of this photograph were made and were shown to conductors, sailors, storekeepers and others, and as a result of this it was pretty well proved that Peter Agar had been seen loitering in the vicinity of the Folkestone-Boulogne boat on the day the money disappeared.

But if he were guilty of the theft how could he have gotten the money from the locked safe?

In the meantime the police started to look for Peter.

It might have taken them a long while to locate him if Peter had not been conveniently arrested for forging checks.

The detectives visited him in jail and asked him to tell what he knew of the robbery of the safe with the gold dust.

He was quite indignant at this, and intimated that he considered it highly unprofessional to ask a man if he is a safe robber when he is already serving time as a check forger.

In a word, he declined to give the authorities any information.

One morning a woman named Mrs. Kay called at Scotland Yard, and without any preliminaries told the amazed officials that the gold-dust robbery had been committed by Agar, John Pierce and Charles Tester. Tester was employed in the traffic department at London bridge.

They asked her what motive she had in "squealing."

She answered in one word: "Revenge!"

It seems that when Agar went to jail on the forgery charges he left $45,000 with Pierce to support Mrs. Kay, who was his "dear friend." Pierce sent her money once or twice and then ceased payment altogether.

It was evident that he intended to cheat her.

She was furious and a furious woman is dangerous.

The state of affairs was explained to Agar and he told the whole story.

Agar and Pierce had conceived the scheme of robbing the safe, but in order to do so it was necessary to get the assistance of some one connected with the railway.

They took Tester into partnership, and the first move came when Pierce visited the Folkestone office with a handful of wax and secured an impression of the key of the safe. After that it was simply a matter of arranging the details.

They arranged to meet the messenger with the safe at a certain point in the journey.

Agar carried the old carpet bag filled with shot and this was quickly substituted for the gold dust.

The loot was divided into three equal parts and the mystery might never have been solved if it had not been for the old carpet bag.

World's Biggest Book

The world's biggest book is in the British museum. It is a gazetteer and atlas of the world printed in Amsterdam in 1556, and is six feet high, four feet wide, and six inches thick. It has a wall space to itself, and students have to consult it as it stands in the position. The British museum also has some of the world's smallest books. Some are slightly smaller in size than a postage stamp. There was a great vogue for these tiny books a century back, and they were carried in the waistcoat pocket.

Precautions Called for
With Perishable Food

Study of human reactions to tin have been exhaustively investigated by the food research laboratory of the bureau of soils in Washington. These studies show that no toxic action need be feared from the use of tin containers. For that reason it has been widely stated that food-stuffs need not be removed from the can after opening because of any danger from tin poisoning.

It must be apparent, on the other hand, that products like milk or canned fruits, vegetables, and meats are perishable substances. Once the can is open, they are subject to contamination from the bacteria of the air just like any fresh product. For that reason it is certainly not desirable for perishable foods to be allowed to stand in open containers any appreciable length of time unless they are kept very cold. Furthermore, though cold delays the growth of these bacteria, it does not entirely prevent their growth. Hence foods cannot be kept in refrigerators in open containers indefinitely.—Dr. Walter H. Eddy, Director of Good Housekeeping Bureau.

Boat That Made History

The war vessel Monitor, built in 1861, was designed by Capt. John Ericsson, one of the inventors of the screw propeller. Its sides were protected by armor plate five inches thick and its turret by armor eight inches thick. Its queer appearance gave it the name, "the Yankee cheese box on a raft."

LAST YEAR HAS HIGH RECORD OF AUTO DEATHS

Excessive Speed And Drunk Driving Are Blamed For Most Of Them

A 15 per cent increase in motor vehicle fatalities—the largest in a single year in the history of the state has been reported for 1934 by the California Highway Patrol.

A provisional figure, based on complete reports for the first eleven months of the year and an estimate for December, placed the gory total of persons who lost their lives in motor accidents during the year at 2771.

This gain of 368 over 1933 and is 180 higher than the all-time record of 2591 deaths established in 1931.

Drunk driving and excessive speed are the elements most blamed by Chief E. Raymond Cato for the increase.

Both may be curbed and a substantial cut in the death rate effected by the addition of a substantial number of men to the present force of the highway patrol, he said.

A characteristic of last year's record was that the actual number of accidents was smaller although the number of deaths was much greater.

Another was the increasing number of accidents in which from three to eight cars were involved.

In Cato's opinion, both characteristics point to a tendency toward greater speed.

"Fatal accidents are much more certain to occur when cars are traveling at excessive speeds," he said.

"It also is far easier for cars to pile up on the highway when two of them become involved in an accident if all are traveling at speeds that are excessive."

The apprehension of drunken drivers and speeders will constitute the patrol's principal objective this year, Cato said.

INSURANCE HAS INCREASED LAST TWELVE MONTHS

Subsidiary Of Transamerica Reports Large Earnings And More Premiums

Pacific National Fire Insurance Company, subsidiary of Transamerica Corporation, has reported net profits for 1934 of $128,613, or $2.57 a share on the 50,000 outstanding shares of capital stock. Net premiums written in 1934 gained 17.2 per cent over 1933.

The 1934 earnings, which exceeded dividend requirements for the year by a margin of 157 per cent, were made public in connection with the publication of an extremely strong statement of condition as of December 31, 1934.

With bonds and stocks listed at market value, and after full reserves for all known contingencies, total assets of the company on December 31 last were $4,180,226, an increase for the year of 15.8 per cent.

The strength and highly liquid position of Pacific National is shown by the fact that cash and government bonds at market value amounted to $1,303,859 or 31.2 per cent of the company's total assets.

The company's statement shows premiums due in the amount of $284,077, which is a net figure representing only premiums currently due and excludes any delinquent accounts.

Pacific National Fire Insurance Company last year increased its unearned premium reserve by $100,887 to a total of $1,091,958 bringing total reserves at the year-end to $1,350,101.

After dividends payments of $50,000 during the year, the net surplus of the company on December 31 was $1,580,125 an increase for the year of 31.3 per cent. Total net premiums written by Pacific National during 1934 amounted to $1,039,346, a 17.2 per cent gain over 1933.

PUT ON YOUR NEW LICENSE PLATES

Destroy Old Ones To Avoid Their Unlawful Use Other Persons

When you receive your new license plates be sure they are fastened on your car in a manner that complies with the law.

The Department of Motor Vehicle has issued this bit of advice to the more than 2,000,000 car owners in California who during the next month will obtain new plates.

The California Vehicle Act requires that plates be placed not less than sixteen inches from the ground.

They must be securely fastened so that they will not become bent or mutilated and must NOT be placed behind spare tire, bumper or other obstruction.

Plates must be kept clean and free from dust and grease.

When you receive your new plates destroy the old ones. This request comes from the registrar of motor vehicles, who says thieves frequently make use of old plates in disposing of stolen cars.

If you have not done so apply at once for your plates. They may be obtained at any branch office of the Division of Registration or by forwarding an application to the main office of the Department of Motor Vehicles in Sacramento. PAST PRESIDENTS MEET

A pleasant and enjoyable meeting of the Past Presidents of El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, N. D. G. W., was held at the home of Mrs. Mary May of Colma on Monday evening of this week.

This was the first meeting since the holiday season and the members found plenty to discuss. Later in the evening refreshments were served.

Among those in attendance were: Mesdames Fredereka Volkman, Anne Biggio, Camille Benessini, Matilda Heeringa, Rena Mathias, Hattie Kelly, Alice Anderson, Evelyn Bemis, Irene Moresco, Florence Hopman, Christine Hume, Julia Romer, Margaret Kane, Alice Oldham and Catherine Wight.

MINING NOTES OF VARIOUS SECTIONS

While it has long been recognized that gold existed in paying quantities on the beach at the mouth of the Red River, hitherto it has only been thought of as a grubstake proposition. However, during the past season, owing doubtless to the higher price of gold, there has been a revival of prospecting and returns have more than justified the efforts set forth. A number of miners have been rocking the Red River gravels this year and plans are being laid to work the deposit in a big way with modern equipment. Late this fall, and practically after the season was over, a storm swept over the section, washing down a great amount of loose earth. When the storm had subsided, Henry Nesbit resumed work and in the short space of a week took out over $300, a satisfactory ending for the year.

The inevitable litigation that follows every discovery of pay ore cropped out this week with the filing of a suit to recover a one-fourth interest in the now famous Silver Queen gold mine located on the Mojave Desert.

Virgil B. Dew, a youthful prospector, claims to have helped in the discovery of the property and says he was beaten out of his legitimate share through "deceit, fraud and deception."

He estimates that the value of the Silver Queen is now five million dollars and has brought suit for $1,200,000 or a 24 per cent interest on this valuation.

The feeling is growing among mining men on the Kenai Peninsula that in the near future practically the entire Kenai River Valley will be dredged.

Prospecting and sniping have been carried on along the Kenai and tributaries for a number of years and during the past season a number of men averaged from $3 to $4 per day while they worked.

Some twenty years ago there was considerable excitement over the dredging possibilities of this section, but after sending engineers in one of the larger mining companies abandoned their holdings.

If only the comparatively low cost of $905,000 could be supplied Alaska could have airplane landing fields in practically every needed place in the Territory. Five main routes with 25 branches would supply Alaska with splendid service, and provide 119 fields, including the 70 now existing. Class A fields are suggested for Talkeetna, Boundary, Iliamna, Dillingham, Skwentna, South Fork and Bethel.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Though blind and begging for a living, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wagner of Chicago had a chauffeur who drove them in their car from their home to their stand each day.

FEBRUARY IS THE SECOND MONTH

Is Time of Ground Hog Day And Large Number Of Birthdays

This month is the second and shortest month of the calendar year. Its name, no longer significant in any way, formerly meant a great deal to the ancient Romans, for it came from a word meaning to purify; this was the month in which the people were purified for the religious festivals of the following months. The primrose is the special flower of this month and the amethyst is its gem.

Until the time of Julius Caesar it had thirty days, but Caesar took one from it to lengthen out his honor month, July; and, when Augustus named the eighth month after himself, he, too, took from February the extra day needed to give his month distinction equal to that of Caesar's. Every four years occurs leap year, which gives to this month twenty-nine days.

February is cold and stormy in the north temperate regions. Often the heaviest snowstorms of the year occur in this late winter month, though it is likely, too, to have occasional warm, sunny days, that point forward to spring. There is an old belief, interesting but of absolutely no value, connected with February weather. On the second of the month, "Ground Hog Day," it is said the ground hog pushes his way out of his winter burrow and looks about him. If he can see his shadow, he creeps back for another sleep of six weeks; but, if the day is cloudy, he knows that spring has almost arrived and there is no more time for dozing.

February has an unusual number of days of peculiar interest, most of them birthdays of prominent personages—Lincoln, Washington, Dickens, Lowell and Longfellow—these being but a few of the great men whose birthdays fall within this month, however.

There is Saint Valentine's Day, on the fourteenth, so named for a Catholic saint, but given over to that kind of sentiment which must not be taken too seriously. Candlemas Day, which falls on February second, is a festival of the Roman Catholic Church, during which the candles to be used in services throughout the year are consecrated.

"The speckled sky is dim with snow, The light flakes falter and fall slow; Athwart the hilltop, rapt and pale, Silently drops a silver veil; And all the valley is shut in By flickering curtains, gray and thin."

NEW LOCATION OF STATE OFFICE FOR CONVENIENCE

The office of the State Superintendent, the State Building and Loan Commissioner and the State Real Estate Commissioner are now all located at 343 Sansome Street, San Francisco. To have these three financial and investment state departments in one building near the financial center of San Francisco is advantageous to the public. The location is across the street from the Federal Reserve Bank, near the corner of California street, and close to most of the banking and financial institutions of San Francisco.

The change of the Banking Department was made in order to secure more space, more adequate quarters better service, and a more convenient location for the public. "The new quarters," according to Friend W. Richardson, Superintendent of Banks, "are greatly superior to the old in every way and a saving of $2000 a year will be made. The present quarters take in the whole fourth floor of the building and has light on four sides."

Mrs. Carrie T. Baade, Department of California, president of the American Legion Auxiliary, gave a most interesting and inspiring talk to the members of the San Mateo County Council of the Auxiliary in Legion Hall, South San Francisco on Friday evening. She covered the different phases of Auxiliary work and had much of interest to tell regarding the recent conference with the National President of the organization in Indianapolis. Mrs. Baade announced the recent appointment of Mrs. Merritt H. Brady of Burlingame as department vice-chairman of publicity. Mrs. Brady is president of the San Mateo County Council and has many years of publicity work serving her own Unit and District Eight. Her work will be in contacting the units through the state, directing their local publicity and the keeping of their publicity record books, etc.

Other distinguished guests at the meeting from whom interesting messages were heard included Mrs. May Machado, National committee woman from Hawaii; Mrs. Elizabeth Drendell, Past National vice-president, and Mrs. Imelda Davis, Rehabilitation chairman of the seventh district.

Mrs. Brady presided during the business session, at which it was decided that the Council will sponsor Warren Miller of Daly City for Page in the Veteran's Fete to be held in San Francisco in February. The Council Drill Team will march in the parade.

Mrs. Marcie Trier, president of the Daly City Unit, was presented with a set of Fidac Flags by Mrs. Brady in recognition of Daly City being the first in the county to make their quota in membership.

During the evening a vocal solo by Mrs. A. Dimminger of South San Francisco was enjoyed. Mrs. Isabelle Lindquist, musician of the council, reported more interest being shown in the forming of a council glee club and asked all who are interested to meet at 7:30 p. m. before the next meeting of the council, which will be on February 8 in Daly City, when Bayside Unit will be hostess.

On February 13, the Seventh and Eighth districts will hold a combined meeting in the War Memorial Building in San Francisco, announced Mrs. Catherine Foreman, president of District Eight. Many of the department officers will be present and will address the meeting. Four of the Council Drill Team members will serve as escorts. All units are requested to have their colors present.

At the conclusion of the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess unit, Bernard McCaffery.
